

U.S. District Court

District of Idaho

550 West Fort St., Rm 400

Boise, ID 83724

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
(otherwise known as the Three Bears)

v.

GOLDILOCKS

STORY AND FACTS

While exploring in the forest one day, Goldilocks became lost. After some time, it began to get cold and stormy looking. She became scared and hungry. She wandered around and finally came upon a cabin in the woods and entered. She found three bowls of porridge on the table. When she went into the living room she saw three chairs. She sat in two which were too big, too uncomfortable, or too poofy. When she sat in the third and smaller chair it broke. After eating the porridge, she went to the bedroom and found three beds. She laid down on all three beds until she found one that was most comfortable and immediately fell into a deep sleep.

The three bears who lived in the cabin came home from their walk in the woods and found two windows broken. They went to the kitchen and found that their porridge had been eaten, Baby Bear's bowl was completely empty. When they went to the living room they again notice that the furniture had been disturbed. Then Baby Bear saw his chair was broken and began crying. At this point, they realized that someone had come into their home uninvited. When they went to the bedroom, they discovered that the someone was still there. Baby Bear cried out, "Someone is sleeping in my bed and she is still there!"

At the shouting and crying, Goldilocks awoke suddenly and ran out of the cabin frightened by the bears.

The three bears followed her out into the National Forest. They found a Park Ranger and complained that Goldilocks had broken into their home, destroyed property and stole their porridge. The Park Ranger found Goldilocks and gave her a notice to appear in federal court on three criminal charges:

1. Breaking and Entering
2. Theft of Porridge
3. Destruction of property